PROFILE

Alexander is an Associated Professor of Social Anthropology at University of Perugia, Italy (PhD University of Siena 2009), where he coordinates the MA-program in “Socio-anthropological sciences”. He holds the Italian National Qualification as Full Professor (asn 2020). Before joining University of Perugia through a program that aims to reverse “brain drain”, he served in different faculty and postdoc positions at Queen’s University Belfast, University of Münster (Germany) and the Blaustein Institutes for Desert Research at Ben-Gurion University of the Negev (Israel).

Areas of Expertise

Alexander’s work focuses on how grassroots activism extends the horizon of what seems possible and thinkable. Over the course of the past decade he has carried out extensive ethnographic fieldwork with Arab-Jewish alliances in the Israeli-Palestinian conflict and with food sovereignty activists in Italy. In both areas, his work focuses on the social production of political claims as horizons of change and potentiality.

His publications in German, French and English cover four monographs and include papers in major international journals, including American Anthropologist, Ethnic and Racial Studies, Contemporary Ethnography, Mobilization, International Journal of Urban and Regional Research and Anthropology Today.
